

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

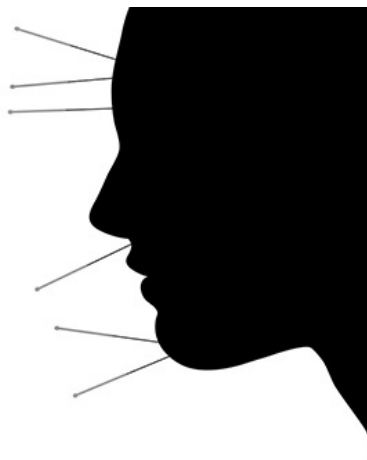

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Does acupuncture really work?

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe events in the news in a range of social and work contexts.

Ask your partner:

- When do you feel pain?
- What do you do about pain?
- What advice would you give to someone who is feeling pain?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about staying healthy.
- I can discuss how to deal with problems.
- I can ask for and give advice.

Let's Explore!

Sally writes another article in her health column. This one is about acupuncture.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

How would you like to have hundreds of tiny needles put into different points on your body to cure you of your aches and pains? In the traditional Chinese form of medicine called acupuncture, this is exactly what is done.

In recent years, acupuncture has become a popular treatment for pain in Western societies. In acupuncture, needles are inserted into special points on the body. The needles help control the flow of the body's energy, called "chi." This flow of energy affects how the body reacts to pain.

The advantage of acupuncture to relieve pain is that it does not have the side effects that painkillers have. However, if you go to only one acupuncture session, you may still feel pain. If you want to be completely cured, you may have to go to an acupuncture therapist many times.

You may want to try acupuncture as well if you have a sinus infection. In addition, acupuncture has helped in curing people of addictions. Needles in the ear are also used to end bad smoking habits and cure addictions.

Let's Practice!

What seems to be the problem* today?

*This is a common question a doctor might ask a patient.

Instructions: Organize the mystery words in column A. Write the words in the correct sentences in column B. Practice saying the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor. Model a conversation with a partner. Switch roles.

COLUMN A

COLUMN B

1. eendles

a. Acupuncture has become a popular _____ for pain in Western societies.

2. atecuuprun

b. How would you like to have hundreds of tiny _____ put into different points on your body?

3. gatevanda

c. _____ may be associated with side effects.

4. Inklespriia

d. The _____ of acupuncture is that it does not have the side effects that some drugs have.

5. tntemrtae

e. In the traditional Chinese form of medicine called _____, this is exactly what is done.

Let's Practice!

If this happens, what is the result?

Instructions: Match the two parts of the sentences from Column A to Column B. Practice saying the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor. Model a conversation with a partner. Switch roles.

COLUMN A

COLUMN B

1. If you have a problem with pain,

a. you might want to try acupuncture as well.

2. If you go to only one acupuncture session,

b. You might feel side effects.

3. If you want to be completely cured,

c. You may have to go to an acupuncture therapist many times.

4. If you have a sinus infection,

d. You may still feel pain.

5. If you take painkillers,

e. you should try acupuncture.

Extension Activity

Do research on the practice of acupuncture.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- With a partner, make a list of 5 questions you would like to answer about acupuncture. For example, you could ask: Does acupuncture work? Where do they put the needles? Etc.
- Go online to find the answers to your questions.
- Write a paragraph with the information you learned about acupuncture. Remember to include an introduction and a concluding sentence. Try to use conditional (If) sentences.
- Read your paragraph.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I write questions about staying healthy using acupuncture.

☐ ☐

I find the answers to the questions online.

☐ ☐

I write a paragraph of 80 - 100 words giving health advice.

☐ ☐

I write conditional sentences.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- needle (noun): instrument used to pierce through something, like material or skin
e.g. How would you like to have hundreds of tiny needles put into different points on your body?
- acupuncture (noun): traditional Chinese practice of placing needles in the body to relieve pain e.g. In the traditional Chinese form of medicine called acupuncture, this is exactly what is done.
- advantage (noun): positive aspect e.g. The advantage of acupuncture is that it does not have the side effects that some drugs have.
- painkiller (noun): drug used to stop people from feeling pain e.g. Painkillers may be associated with side effects.
- treatment (noun): actions completed to cure a patient of a sickness
e.g. Acupuncture has become a popular treatment for pain in Western societies.
- sinus (noun): area in the head that connect the nasal cavities e.g. If you have a sinus infection, you might want to try acupuncture .
- to cure (verb): to solve a health problem
e.g. Needles in the ear are used to end bad smoking habits and cure addictions.
- to relieve (verb): to reduce
e.g. Acupuncture relieves pain but does not have the side effects of some painkillers.

Learning Points

Modals for Advice

To give advice about things like health issues, you can use modals like might, may, could, or should.

These modals can go at the beginning of the sentence, or after a clause starting with "If ...".

The modal is followed by a verb in the base form. You do not use "to".

These are formal ways of making suggestions.

Examples:

- You may try visiting an acupuncturist as an alternative to traditional medicine.
- If you have a sinus infection, you might want to try acupuncture as well.
- You could schedule an appointment with a natural healer and see what she has to say.
- I think you should try a variety of options and see which ones work best for you.

Learning Points

Conditional Sentences

You use the conditional sentences with If clauses to talk about real possibilities in the future.

You use the First Conditional to say it's possible that you will do something. In that condition, something else may or will (not) happen.

The parts of the sentence are divided into two clauses: the If clause and the result, or main, clause.

The If clause can go at the start or the end of the sentence.

When the If clause starts a sentence, you separate the two clauses with a comma. When the main clause starts the sentence, you do not use a comma.

1st Clause	2nd Clause	Meaning
If you go to only one acupuncture session,	you may still feel pain.	It's possible you go to only one acupuncture session. In this condition: you may still feel the pain.
You might want to try acupuncture as well	if you have a sinus infection.	It's possible you have a sinus infection. In this condition: you might want to try acupuncture.

Examples:

- If you go to only one acupuncture session, you may still feel pain.
- You might want to try acupuncture as well if you have a sinus infection.

